

National Weather Service Wilmington, NC

Outlook Period: Friday August 17 through Sunday August 19, 2018
Time Issued: 930 AM Friday August 17, 2018

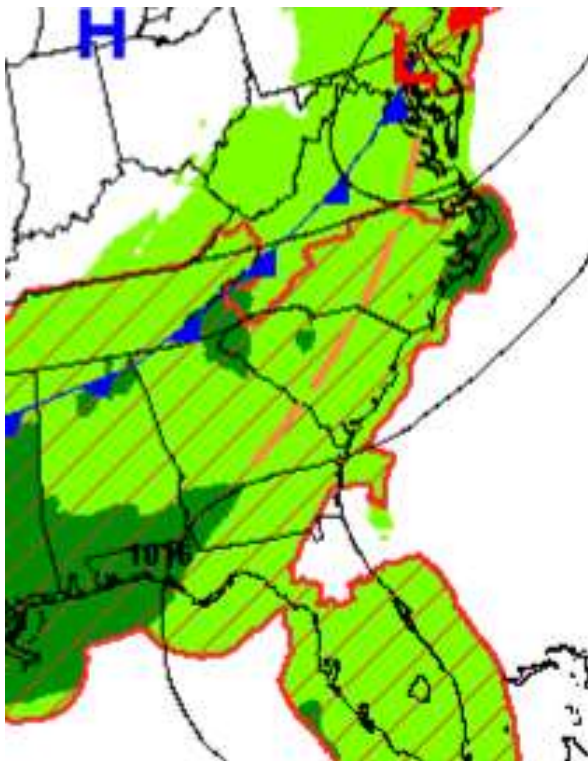

Prepared by: Rick Neuherz

Scattered showers and thunderstorms expected this weekend.

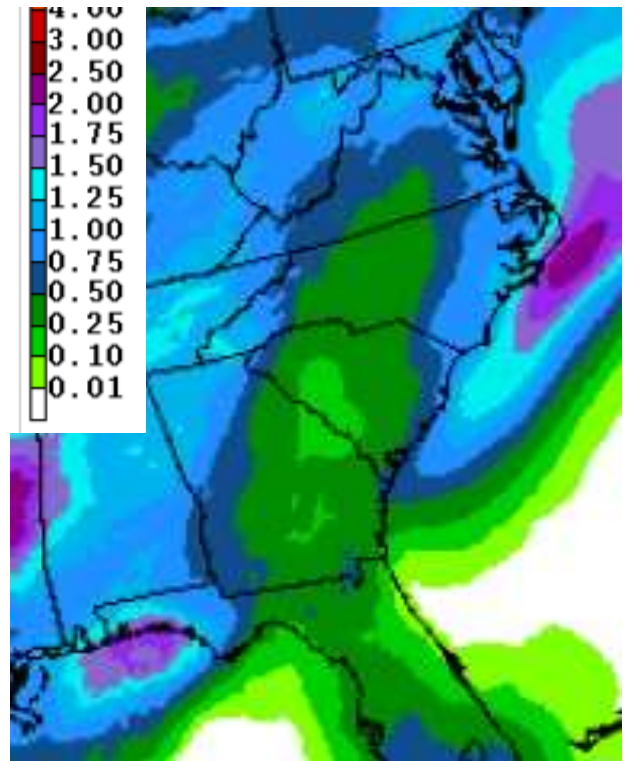

Overview: Scattered showers and thunderstorms are expected through the weekend as an approaching cold front and an upper level trough of low pressure act on a moist and unstable air-mass.

Impacts: Locally heavy rainfall could produce isolated flooding, especially in poor drainage locations. Frequent cloud to ground lightning is also possible in stronger storms.

Timing/Confidence: Confidence is moderate to high that scattered showers and storms will affect the area through Sunday. Coverage of storms is expected to be the greatest Saturday night and Sunday.

Front position valid 8 AM Sun Aug 19, 2018

Average rainfall (in.) today through Mon morning
